Dear Friends:

The 100th Anniversary of Melvin is a memorable event in which all of us take great pride. For us this is also a festive occasion, when we renew old acquaintances and reminisce about "the good old days" which have since become these "better days". We will laugh at our antics and rejoice in our accomplishments.

I was born and raised in Melvin. I fondly recall being one of the schoolboys "creeping like snail unwillingly to school". Vivid in my memory are my hectic Saturday nights clerking in a Melvin store when almost everyone for miles around came to town. There are many, many things of our life in and around Melvin that all of us will recall.

Being privileged to be a Member of Congress has kept me largely confined to Washington. My home is in Melvin to which I return as often as I can. My thoughts are like those of the poet whose words I have adapted:

"Washington is a man's town,
there's power in the air.
Paris is a woman's town,
with flowers in her hair.
It's great to dream of Venice,
and it's great to study Rome;
But when it comes to living,
there is no place like home."

I look forward to seeing my friends and neighbors, old and new, as we celebrate the 100th Anniversary of our beloved hometown of Melvin.

Sincerely,

LESLIE C. ARENDS

Preface

This booklet attempts to capture the heritage of the Melvin area in written history and in photography. Through the work of more than thirty local historians, and especially that of the Premier Archivist, Miss Adelaide Dixon, we have tried to give the reader an insight into the first hundred years of this prairie town. And innumerable citizens have supplied pictures to make the background more meaningful.

Nevertheless, a present reader may find much that is already known to him, but all of it may be news to the reader of fifty years hence.

We express our gratitude for the many wonderful people who have helped to make this Centennial Booklet a reality.

William Walker, Chairman

Aerial View of Melvin.
Melvin is a prairie town. Its roots are deep in the fertile soil from which it sprang. Unimagined wealth lay beneath the tall prairie grasses, undisturbed for centuries.

The Kickapoo Indians hunted and roamed over the “great prairies” long before the white man ever saw this part of the country. Many of their arrowheads, tools, weapons, and paint pots have been unearthed by the plows of local farmers. By 1840 most Indian tribes, through Congressional enactment, had been compelled to vacate their lands and settle west of the Mississippi River.

In the year 1830, when the first pioneers in covered wagons were making the long trek to points in northern Illinois across the part of the country where Melvin is now located, they traveled the old “Ottawa Trail” which led from Danville to Ottawa, Illinois. They came from the eastern states, many from Ohio.

This part of Illinois was a wilderness of prairie, with here and there a belt of timber fringing the streams. Pioneers thought that because there was nothing growing but prairie grasses, the land would not be good for farming. They drove on to the rivers, the woods, and coal and lead mines of northern Illinois.

In 1855, Joshua Nicholson and his brothers, Elick and Alexander, came from southern Illinois with a thousand peach trees on their hayrack. They chose the rolling hillside five miles northwest of Melvin to plant the trees. The orchard was cultivated for a number of years; then the trees died and were never replaced. In 1868, when the new township was created, William B. Holmes and John S. Hunt, the first settlers, suggested that it be named “Peach Orchard.”

William B. Holmes came from Georgetown, Vermilion County, in April, 1855. He was the first man to plow a furrow on the prairie sod of Peach Orchard Township when he broke ten acres of land. He also built the first house, and on May 29, 1857, the Holmes' daughter, Fannie, was born, the first white child born in Peach Orchard Township.

For about ten years very few people settled in this part of the country, called "grand prairie." Then, in 1867, John S. Hunt and John Woolsoncroft came from LaSalle County and purchased hundreds of acres of land for $9.00 an acre. John S. Hunt built the second house in the township one-half mile north of the Melvin cemetery.

During the fall of 1867 and the spring of 1868, many families from northern Illinois came down the Ottawa Trail to Ford County. Among them were George Arends, Ties Arends, John Iehl, James Dixon, George Dixon, Joshua Umbarger, William Boundy, Gerhard DeFries, Isaac Day, and T. D. Thompson. Others were John Thackeray, W. T. Gash, George Phillips, William Lackey, George and William Foster, Henry Spellmeyer, Henry Rowcliffe, and John Underwood, followed by many others the next year. However, when the township was organized Sept. 15, 1868, there were only seventeen voters within its boundaries.

The nearest towns to Peach Orchard Township were Loda and Chatsworth. Farmers would drive teams hitched to wagons to town twice a year for barrels of flour, sugar, crackers, and other groceries, to last six months or longer.

In 1870, word reached the pioneers that a railroad was to be built from Gilman to Springfield. When Enoch S. Hunt heard about it, he was instrumental in getting the railroad to be built across a part of Peach Orchard Township, through a section of his farm. He took sixty-five acres of his farm for a town site, made the original plat of the village, and also platted two additions to the town. It was surveyed at his request by H. J. Howe, county surveyor.

A railroad station was soon built at the east end of Main street. T. D. Thompson was the first station agent, and his son, Clyde, was the first child born in Melvin. He built the first house in town, where Mrs. Frances Kenward’s house now stands; in fact, some of the original foundation can still be seen.

One of the first business places in Melvin was a blacksmith shop, built by Si Sturenberg on west Main street. Mr. Sturenberg had come from Germany.

Enoch Hunt dedicated the town July 18, 1871, naming it Melvin, in honor of the president of the Illinois Central Railroad. The first train came through that fall. All supervisors along the right-of-way were given two free tickets to ride the train to Chicago to view the ruins of the great Chicago fire of 1871. James Dixon III, who was the first supervisor of Peach Orchard Township, along with his wife, Jane Hunt Dixon, and their baby son, James IV, were passengers on that first train.

Early records show that other officials besides Mr. Dixon were W. H. Thompson, the first mayor; Henry Mohr, clerk; and John Hunt, tax collector. Those who served on the village board were A. L. Gedelman, where he had learned the blacksmith trade and the making of farm wagons. His shop was always a busy place, especially in winter when he shod farmer's horses so they could haul shelled corn over the deep-rutted, frozen roads to the town elevators.
In upper right hand corner is Clyde Thompson, the first child born in Melvin.

Posed in Sunday best for picture taking are George Phillips and Glyde Boshell.

In 1871, John S. Hunt gave five acres of his farm for the Melvin cemetery. He chose the highest point of his farm, one-half mile north and one-half mile east of town, for its location. The first burial was the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard DeFries.

The first grain elevator was built in 1872 by Frasius Iehl and Company. George T. Arends, father of Leslie C. Arends, was one of the owners. All grain had to be scooped by hand from the elevator into the grain cars for shipping.

John M. Thompson established the first farm implement business in 1874, which he operated until 1886. He sold out to his son, W. E. Thompson, who carried on the business with his uncle, W. H. Thompson.

The first Melvin schoolhouse was built on south Hunt street in 1875. In 1876, August Gould built a general merchandise store. Five churches were built before 1900: First Methodist, 1871; German Methodist, 1881; German Lutheran, 1873; Congregational, 1888, and St. George Catholic, 1880.

Melvin's first industry was a tile factory. It was built about 1880 on the south edge of Enoch Hunt's farm. There was a great need for tile, as farmers found the prairie sod wet and swampy. After operating for several years, the factory was destroyed by fire and never rebuilt. The only evidence of the factory now is the old tile pit, where youngsters still like to fish in the summer and skate on the ice in the winter.

Years ago farmers would come to town with their horse-drawn bobsleds and help saw huge cakes of ice from the tile pit. These were packed in sawdust and stored in an old building on Center street. In the summer, folks would buy chunks of ice for their wooden iceboxes. Many a freezer of homemade ice cream, using ice from the storehouse, was made for special occasions and for church festivals, held on a vacant lot and lighted by Japanese lanterns.
Winter was a time of snowball battles and ice skating on the old tile pit. The skaters warmed themselves beside bonfires built under the railroad bridge, and all the girls wanted to skate with Ollie Ofterdall because he was such a good figure skater. Enoch Hunt had a big bay horse, Alex, and a red cutter, and it was his delight to take all the little folks sleigh riding after school.

During the years clubs were formed and lodges were instituted. Among them was a Republican Woman’s Marching Club, directed by Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Foreman, long-time school teachers in Melvin from 1880 to 1901. The ladies wore white dresses with blue ties and white hats, and marched along, singing “Old Billy Bryan, sitting on the fence, Trying to make a dollar out of forty-nine cents.” They carried banners, “William McKinley for President.” They often held big bonfire rallies at the east edge of Melvin, and drove horses and buggies to Chatsworth on one occasion, to take part in a big rally. One member, Mrs. Edna Dueringer, still resides in Melvin, and two other members were Mrs. Austa Boundy, now of Paxton, and Sylvia Hull Yarnell, Kankakee.

The Grand Army of the Republic was organized in 1885 by veterans of the Civil War. In 1890, its auxiliary, the Woman’s Relief Corps, was established. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows was formed 1888; the Rebekah Lodge No. 337, 1894; Masonic Lodge A. F. & A. M. No. 811, 1891; and the Royal Neighbors of America in 1898. The Knights of Pythias were active in 1894.

Most of the entertainment of early days centered around the churches. There were oyster suppers, strawberry festivals, ice cream socials, Sunday School picnics, (held in Shilts grove south of Melvin), and Epworth League parties. Square dances, carpet rag sewings and quilting parties were held in the homes.

Spelling bees, cipher downs, programs, and box socials were forms of entertainment held in the country schoolhouses. In the early 1900’s, medicine shows would come to town and perform in Hodges’ hall. The Jesse Colton Show would come each summer and present stage plays in a large tent on the grounds where James Shives’ house is now located. Some of the plays were “Ten Nights in a Barroom,” “The Little Princess,” “East Lynn” and others.

Hardy volunteers with scoop shovels are attempting to break up the huge snow drifts so the “powerful” machine in the background can finish the job.
In 1897, telephones were installed in Melvin. A telephone office, built on north Center street, was operated by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kaufman. They also had a photographer's shop in the rear of the telephone office.

One early settler, Frederick Steinman, grandfather of Mrs. Henry Ficken, was a Civil War veteran. Three Melvin boys joined the armed forces during the Spanish-American War of 1898. They were John Miller, Claude Bookwalter, and Jacob Holverson. Another Spanish-American veteran, Frederick Howk, moved to Melvin later.

This building housed the telephone office until the dial system was installed.

In 1899, J. A. Schafer and Amandus Buchholz built the first brick stores on Main street.

Since Biblical times the well was a gathering place. This was the main pump shown on the early plat map on the opposite page. Plainly distinguishable in the right background is the home of Dr. Perry, where Bruce Kiener now lives. The buildings at the left were replaced by the Thompson building in 1910. Resting on the wheelbarrow is Michael Karney; his son, Walter has his arm around the dog's neck. Enoch Hunt lounges against the side of the well.
The Big Four Drainage District, established in August, 1899, provides the Melvin area with most of its drainage. During 1900 and 1901, the district undertook its first big project which was construction of a twenty-four-mile open ditch. This ditch is supplemented by at least twenty sub-districts, most of them open ditches. Hundreds of miles of tile, many of which were laid before 1910, honeycomb the area. Approximately 43,000 acres are in this district which empties into the middle fork of the Vermilion river, southeast of Paxton, then winds to near Danville, and eventually to the Wabash river.

Some of the persons who have been commissioners over the years are John Worthington, Henry Spellmeyer, Harry Strelluf, Philip Benz, Charles Sharp, and O. K. Boshell. Current commissioners are Delmar Lee, Melvin, and Paul Davis and Richard Schertz, Gibson City.

Records from 1901 show that citizens signed a petition to save the shade trees destroyed while building sidewalks, and sent a request to the village board for hitching racks at the west end of town. Ellis Worthington submitted a bill for scooping snow at twenty-five cents an hour. Mike Bristle, town marshal, received a monthly salary of $25; street crossing cleaner, fifteen cents an hour; and judges of election, $2.00.

In 1902, twelve gasoline lights were put up on poles on the street corners, and "the old lamplighter," Paul Hoobler, and later Alfred Graff, lighted them each night. Eventually, the Central Illinois Public Service Company, at the request of the city council, put in electric lights for the town.
During 1903, Henry Spellmeyer and Amandus Buchholz purchased twenty-seven acres of Enoch Hunt’s farm, lying just north of Second street. They were called Spellmeyer and Buchholz second additions to Melvin. Lots were sold for $200, and by 1906, twenty-five new houses had been built.

A new school building at the west end of Main street replaced the old wooden structure in 1904. The Order of Eastern Star chapter was also instituted that year, making eight clubs and lodges for the town.

About 1908, George T. Arends and his son, Andrew, built a concrete block factory across the alley from Andrew’s home on Crossley street. Several buildings in Melvin, including Hartmann’s garage, Allen’s garage, the Remus Curtis home, and the village hall were built of blocks from this factory.

Around the year 1909, a race track was built at the north edge of Melvin on William Hunt’s farm, operated by his son, Clyde. Races (sulky and horseback) were held each summer and the amphitheater was always crowded.

Ballgames were popular summer entertainment then, just as they are today. The Fourth of July celebration always featured a balloon ascension.

For many years band concerts were presented each Wednesday evening from a hayrack on Main street. William Madden, son of Professor William Madden, Sr., organized a popular band in 1914. After the Maddens moved, William Beck became the bandmaster. The band played for Fourth of July celebrations, homecomings at Colfax, Roberts, Thawville, and Sibley, and the Gibson City Corn Carnival. Some of the members joined the Navy during World War I and played in the Great Lakes Navy Band.

In 1910, the first airplane that many Melvin residents had ever seen had a race with an Illinois Central passenger train. It was a Wright Brothers' aircraft, piloted by Walter Brookins. The race began at Washington Park, Chicago, and ended at the Illinois State Fairgrounds in Springfield, a distance of 187 miles, in five hours and forty-seven minutes at a "record breaking" speed of thirty-five miles an hour. Brookins won the race and the $10,000 prize offered by the Chicago Record, a William Randolph Hearst newspaper. The plane landed twice for refueling, the first stop at Gilman and the other at Mount Pulaski. Wilbur Wright, whose flying machine made history at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, was a passenger on the train. School was dismissed, so all the pupils could go to the depot or some open space near the tracks to view the race, and were thrilled to wave to Mr. Wright when he appeared on the rear platform of the train.

By 1904, the automobile was receiving some notice. Dr. H. N. Boswell and Charles Schueneman had the first automobiles in town. W. H. Thompson and Son became Ford dealers, selling Ford touring cars at $295. They built a concrete block garage on east Main street, where the old Melvin Hotel, operated by Mrs. Ruth Hunt Miller, was located. Fred Mielke was the agent for Chevrolet, while Edward Dietterle sold the Durant, Star, and Oakland automobiles. Before World War I, only forty-six automobiles and seven tractors were owned by Melvin area residents.
Some of the other business places on Main street in the early 1900's were as follows: N. T. Graves, liveryman; George T. Harsch, general merchandise; William Stathers, hardware; Thompson Company, implements and harness; Day and Ricketts, meat market; Dr. H. N. Boshell; Roland's restaurant; William Buchholz, grain dealer; Wheeler and Berry, grain dealers; Colteaux and Hunt, real estate; Jacob Gedelman, contractor Dr. E. T. Magarity, dentist; W. B. Phillips, barber; E. K. Ashley, painter; Mahlon Hess, druggist; George Timmons, restaurant; George Arends, restaurant; Harry Bell, meat market; James Cooper, meat market, and Henry Holverson painter.

About seventy-five Melvin boys were in the armed services in 1916 when the United States joined the other Allied nations in the war which would "make the world safe for democracy." None were killed in battle, but many died in camp of the flu epidemic. Everyone celebrated when news came on November 11, 1918, that an armistice had been signed, and a big parade was held on Main street. Iva Sprouse Arends, dressed as the Goddess of Liberty, led the parade. The Kaiser was hung in effigy on west Main street.

In 1919, the American Legion Post No. 642 was organized. In 1922, a new high school was built at the north end of Melvin. By 1923, Melvin had its one and only "Empire Theatre," owned by George Arends.

Henry Hackett operated the motion picture machine. Jacob Miller was ticket seller, and Thelma King and Evelyn Meyers played the piano for the silent movies. A favorite movie serial, shown once a week, was "The Perils of Pauline."

One exciting day in 1923, J. A. Schafer's bank was robbed. The culprits were caught in Peoria and sentenced to the Joliet prison.

During the 1920's and 30's, some of the business places and people were as follows:

- Charles Hodges, blacksmith
- W. C. Holmes, general merchandise
- Glen Thompson, general merchandise
- Charles Groen, boots and shoes
- William Kayser, leather goods and shoes

Melvin was in the depths of the Great Depression in 1933, although the agricultural depression had already made itself felt for several years. Franklin D. Roosevelt was president and the first hundred days of his administration made headlines everywhere. The first step he took which affected Melvin was closing the nation's banks in March, 1933. For the first time in nearly fifty years, the town had no banking facilities.

Shave and a haircut - - - - six bits.

Many new organizations were formed during these years, including the Melvin Woman's Club, Junior Woman's Club, American Legion Auxiliary, 4-H clubs, the Home Bureau (now the Home Extension) Ancient Order of Gleaners, Melvin Library, and the Melvin Garden Club.

In 1933, the first fire hose truck was purchased for the Melvin Fire Department. Charles Hodge was fire chief and Roy Fickwiler and Harry Kessler were assistants. In 1940, a chemical fire truck was purchased.

By 1933 most of the old wooden buildings on Main street had been razed, and new brick structures had been built.

Nearly everyone in Melvin visited the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago during the summers of 1933 and 1934. The year 1934 was important to Melvin for another reason, for Leslie C. Arends was elected to represent the 17th district in the United States Congress.

The town was really feeling the impact of the second World War by 1943. One hundred and thirty boys and girls were in the armed forces, and those who were left were in war work of various kinds. Farmers were turning out huge quantities of food stuffs without adequate help, with pre-war machinery. If equipment broke down, it was repaired somehow.

Many persons worked in defense plants, on the ration board, the draft board, or with the Red Cross. There were bandages to be made in the Red Cross rooms, with Mrs. Robert Fitchie in charge, blood to be donated which meant trips to Chicago and Kankakee to the blood banks, and many other types of war work. Rationing was the order of the day. War bond drives were always successful, and Melvin usually exceeded its quota. Everyone was drawn closer together in a spirit of sacrifice. The old cannon that stood in the Melvin cemetery so many years was given to the scrap iron drive.

Adelaide Dixon, fifth and sixth grade teacher, organized a Junior Red Cross. This group conducted paper drives and collected aluminum and scrap iron. They made lap robes and elbow pillows for military hospitals.

The war ended, the servicemen returned, and for the first time Melvin suffered from a housing shortage. New houses sprang up and business houses were remodeled or enlarged.

On Veterans' Day, November 11, 1947, a war memorial monument was dedicated which was inscribed with the names of one hundred and thirty veterans from Melvin and vicinity. The monument was purchased with proceeds from the raffle of an afghan, donated by Mrs. Jane McConnell, a Hunt descendant. The names of seven boys who had paid the supreme sacrifice were marked with gold stars: John Arends, Dale Bentz, William Brokate, James Cooper, John Frank, Ronald Gimbel, and John Huston. The monument stands at the corner of Main and Crossley streets, where Veterans' Day services are conducted each year by local organizations.

In 1946, the Veterans of Foreign Wars was organized, and in 1949 its auxiliary was formed. Also, in 1946, residents found a new pastime at the Melvin Roller Rink, owned by S. E. Shives. During the several years that it was in operation, Mike Arends and S. E. Shives both suffered broken arms, but neither managed to learn the art of skating. Then the crowd found other forms of entertainment, and the building was used as a poultry house for several years. It is now used by the Melvin-Sibley schools for housing the school busses.

The general prosperity of the community is reflected in the fact that there are only a few vacant business places, and the population remains stable at 550. In 1959, Francis Swearingen platted an addition on Third street, called the Swearingen addition, where five new houses have been built. (The Swearingen home is not included in this addition.)

Great changes occurred on the farms when electricity became available through the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) in the late 1930's. Many back-breaking jobs vanished forever, as electric power replaced muscle power.

The rural area changed drastically in other ways during the last decade or two. Farms have become larger. Many old farmhouses and outbuildings have disappeared along with the Osage Orange hedgerows which served the pioneers as fences and boundary lines. At the turn of the century a typical farm was approximately 160 acres, although many small families got along quite nicely on 80 acres. Now, farms of 500 to 1,000 acres are common; the average-size Ford County farm during 1970 was 340 acres.
In 1949 a major change in the school system was effected. The Melvin and Sibley schools were merged into one district. Each town had its own grade school, grades 1 through 6; 7th and 8th graders attended junior high in Sibley; and high school classes were held in Melvin. Ralph Moore was the first unit superintendent; Bill Coddington was high school principal; Ed Freehill left the Melvin grade school to become principal of the Sibley grade school and the Melvin-Sibley junior high; and Maude Whiteman was named principal of the Melvin grade school.

In 1961 a new Melvin grade school was built adjoining the high school and the old grade school, first occupied in 1905, was demolished. In September of this year another change will be made; Grades K through 5 of both Melvin and Sibley will have their classes in Sibley and grades 6 through 8 will meet in the present Melvin grade school.

The cooperation among Melvin residents and their feeling of responsibility for their neighbors have given the Melvin Volunteer Fire Department an enviable reputation. Probably the two largest fires in Melvin's history were in 1949 when the Melvin State Bank was gutted by fire and in 1970 when the large grain elevator owned by the Ford Grain Company was destroyed.

In 1951 the Melvin Fair Association purchased seventeen acres of land at the east end of Melvin and the fair that year was held at the new location. Since its beginning, in 1926, the fair had been held in the space north of the high school. As new attractions were added and space for more exhibits was needed, the original area was outgrown. In 1955, seven acres more were added to the fairgrounds and the first permanent building was constructed for the household exhibits. With the addition of other buildings, a grandstand seating 3,000 persons, and a small lake, the grounds are now appraised at $100,000.
Shown above is a “Bates Steel Mule,” a three bottom tractor owned by Andrew Beacher in 1917. The tractor has a 4 cylinder gas engine and a one track crawler in back. Of the three wheels shown, one is to steer, one to shift gears and the other to disengage the clutch.

As is our country’s other wars, Melvin was courageously and honorably represented in the Korean and Viet Nam wars. One Melvin boy lost his life in each war: Harold Rowcliff in Korea, and Donnie Dale in Viet Nam.

Six Melvin girls brought a considerable measure of fame to their home town in 1953 and 1954. Patty Freehill, Eleanor Dueringer, Nada Rowand, Nancy Thackeray, Annette Thackeray, and Beverly Moore, all members of the 4-H club, formed a sextet with the assistance of Lois Weber as accompanist and Patricia Gasthoff, music director for the schools. They called themselves the “Cloverettes” and made many appearances in this part of the state. In every 4-H club competition, they won first place, including the state finals. In December, 1953, they represented Illinois at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. The people of Melvin and friends from this part of the country sent hundreds of postal cards to a Chicago TV station where the girls appeared on the Morris B. Saks Amateur Hour. Each card was counted as a vote and the Cloverettes won that competition in 1954. Polly and Bud Lippincott and Polly and Arnold Rowand did a lot of chauffeuring in 1953 and 1954 and heard a lot of singing.

“Les Arends Day” on May 27, 1960, was a big event for Melvin, marking the congressman’s twenty-fifth year as representative from the 17th District.

Congressman and Mrs. Arends and Vice-President and Mrs. Richard Nixon flew to Chanute Field, where they were greeted by other dignitaries, and proceeded to Melvin in a motorcade. The town was decorated with flags and banners and placards reading, “Welcome Les.” The first stop was at the Melvin-Sibley High School where Vice President Nixon gave a short talk to over a thousand people. Then the crowd moved to the Arends’ residence, at the corner of Second and Crossley streets, where a press conference had been set up in the back yard.

Fred Drake was chairman of the event, which drew 5,400 people to the Melvin fairgrounds that evening for a fish fry supper, served by the Ford County Council of the American Legion and the Auxiliaries.

A reception line, including the Arends, Nixons, Governor Stratton, and other distinguished guests, formed in the dance hall. At 7:30 P. M. a program was held in front of the grandstand. Mrs. C. Wayland Brooks, national Republican Committeewoman of Illinois, was introduced, and Governor William Stratton spoke briefly. Millard Dixon, commander of Melvin Post No. 642 of the American Legion, presented Congressman Arends with a life membership card to that organization.
A congratulatory telegram from President Eisenhower was read by Bruce Harlow, deputy presidential assistant. Vice-President Nixon gave the address of the evening. Following the program, a dance was held in the pavilion, with music by the Ralph Martini band.

The population of Melvin might be divided into three groups: the elderly, retired persons, many of them widows or widowers; the "commuters," who may be employed in Champaign, Bloomington, or even farther away; and the local business and professional people, who make their living by serving the needs of the community.

The post-war "baby boom" was reflected in a peak enrollment in the Melvin-Sibley schools of 528 during 1963-64. A tapering-off process began around 1968-69, which is expected to continue through the mid-seventies, if current projections are correct. Beginning with the 1970 fall term, the district had 454 students. This had dropped to 434 by the end of the school year.

As Melvin begins its second century, there is a general air of quiet confidence which is heartening. As long as its citizens have this faith in the future and are willing to work to make their dreams become realities, Melvin will have a bright future.

Melvin is in the "Heartland of America." It has all the nostalgic flavor of an Illinois town—deep-shaded streets, unfenced yards, friendly people. There are still mighty footsteps in the prairie grasses as they bow before the wind, footsteps of a brave and simple past, leading to a confident tomorrow.

Melvin Chapter No. 537 of the Order of the Eastern Star was instituted on December 5, 1904, in the Melvin Masonic Hall, with Onarga Chapter No. 429 conducting the work. Lizzie Sharp and Dr. H. N. Boshell were installed as worthy matron and worthy patron. Other officers installed that night were Georgia Wheeler, Dora Buchholz, Ida Phillips, Mabel Harsch, Mary Sharp, and Lizzie Sharp and Dr. H. N. Boshell presented the chapter with a gavel of California orange wood, and Mr. and Mrs. George Harsch gave a frame for the charter.

The chapter adopted its by-laws on December 16, 1904, and installation took place on January 6, 1906. A note from the minutes of this meeting reads “The hearts of the members were rejoiced by the promise that the worthy matron would not always have to use a doorknob for a gavel, the worthy patron becoming voluntarily responsible for a brand new emblem of authority.” At a later meeting Dr. and Mrs. H. N. Boshell

The first Grand Chapter appointment for Melvin was Leila Iehl, who was Grand Representative of Washington for three years. In 1924, Leila became a Grand Lecturer, and for some time was instructress for the Melvin Chapter.

The chapter celebrated its twenty-fifth year on December 4, 1929, and charter members received bronze emblems at the thirtieth anniversary, on December 5, 1934.

Fifty-year pins and certificates have been awarded to eight members; Julia Kenward, the late Eva Phillips, Bertha Howk, Glyde Dietterle, Eva Spellmeyer, Bertha Arends, Iva Arends, and Nellie Yackee. During 1971, three more members will receive the honor: Ena Thompson, LouElla Wright, and Ethel Willy.
Gifts of furnishings and other appointments from members and from the Masonic Lodge have added beauty to the chapter room. New red carpeting was installed in 1970, which was the result of a project begun in 1962. The Masons also lent their assistance to this undertaking.

Darlene Blair qualified for Grand Lecturer in 1958, and has been instructress for the chapter since 1959. In 1961, she was appointed Grand Representative of Manitoba for three years, and in 1965 she was installed as Grand Esther of Illinois.

Melvin helped institute a new chapter at Sibley in 1945. Twenty-one years later the Sibley group merged with Melvin, and some people who had originally belonged to the Melvin chapter were welcomed back.

Members have contributed regularly to the Macon Home For the Aged, at Macon, Illinois. This institution, together with the one at Rockford, is maintained by Eastern Star members. The chapter also makes annual contributions to the cancer and heart funds, and to a scholarship fund for young people who are interested in becoming nurses, doctors, teachers or ministers.

The present worthy matron is Bonnie Lange, and the worthy patron is Edward Blair. Other officers include Donna Dueringer, associate matron; Larry Dueringer, associate patron; Ruth Reitz, secretary; and Bertha Howk, treasurer.

Rebekah Lodge

Melvin Rebekah Lodge, No. 337, was instituted May 2, 1894. The first officers were Maggie Gould, Noble Grand; Mary Shreves, Vice Grand; Hannah Holmes, recording secretary, and May Thompson, treasurer. The lodge closed September 27, 1948. The last officers were: Gladys Bristle, Noble Grand; Sarah Starks, Vice Grand; Nettie Carter, secretary, and Philip Benz, treasurer.

The present parsonage was erected about 1915. Three years later the church received its first electrical wiring, and the parsonage was wired in 1921. About this time, the congregation provided the pastor, Rev. Wilhelm Schumacher, with a Model “T” with which to make his rounds.

The third building, at the north end of Center street, was dedicated on September 10, 1967, just prior to the congregation’s celebration of its ninety-fifth anniversary.

Eighteen pastors have served the church. Rev. Harold Heinzig is the present pastor. Organizations within the church include the Luther League, Brotherhood, and the American Lutheran Church Women, or A.L.C.W.

St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church

St. Peter’s Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized on October 20, 1872, as the “German Evangelical Church.” It consisted of fifteen families and the pastor, the Rev. Simon Suess. These members erected a building in the spring of 1873 which housed both the sanctuary and the parsonage, and was located at the site of the present parsonage, on Green street. It was valued at $1,100.

Growth of the congregation required a new and larger building by 1888. This second building, with several additions and modifications, served the congregation for seventy-nine years.

Toward the end of the 1800's St. Peter's began its association with the Lutheran congregations in Germanville and Roberts. The Germanville Lutherans later affiliated with those in Chatsworth, but cooperation with those in Roberts has continued to the present day.

In 1913, the use of the English language was begun. As the years passed the German language was used less frequently, eventually being replaced altogether by English.

The present parsonage was erected about 1915. Three years later the church received its first electrical wiring, and the parsonage was wired in 1921. About this time, the congregation provided the pastor, Rev. Wilhelm Schumacher, with a Model “T” with which to make his rounds.

The Ladies Aid, now the Women’s Society of Christian Service, was organized in 1895, with twenty-five charter members. The Woman’s Home Missionary Society began functioning in 1912, with Mrs. F. A. Bose as the first president.

The brick church was completed and dedicated in 1912, during the pastorate of Rev. Ferd A. Bose. The beautiful stained glass windows in this building were given by the children of charter members in honor of their parents.

Services at Zion Methodist Church were discontinued in March, 1969, and the two Methodist churches of Melvin were merged on June 1, 1969, under the pastorate of Rev. Harry K. Deffley.

Along with Sunday School activities, a Junior League was organized. The Epworth League was Melvin school, had been moved into town in 1875 from its original location on the Charles Phillips farm. It was relocated at the present site of the Catholic church.

Then the Melvin church was made an outmission of Immaculate Conception Church of Gilman in 1885. Barney McTeman (a cousin of the late John Goggins) was railroad section boss from 1885 to 1889. When weather permitted, he would take the rail handcar to Gilman on Sundays to bring the priest to Melvin.

The present frame structure was built in 1889 when Father John P. Quinn was pastor of Immaculate Conception Church in Gilman. Melvin remained an outmission of Gilman for two years thereafter.

In 1891 Father John P. Barry was named first resident pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Gibson City and Melvin was attached to this parish. Father Barry's parish consisted of 135 families scattered over a territory of 900 square miles, encompassing 22 villages.

As the Catholic population increased so did the supply of pastors. Masses were said on regular schedules and catechism classes on Saturday mornings became a part of the lives of the children in the St. George parish. Father Gleason, who was pastor at the turn of the century, is remembered by former parishioners as a stern disciplinarian who reproved the children for saying their morning prayers in bed.

Parishes grew, and the pastors needed assistance with the religious education classes. Gradually parishioners relieved them of these teaching duties. At present, classes of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine are conducted at the parish hall in Gibson City on Saturdays for grade school students and on Sundays for high school students.
During the pastorate of Father McMullen, on June 14, 1925, the late Father Alphonse Freehill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Freehill of rural Melvin, offered his First Mass at the home of his parents. As St. George's church was too small to accommodate the two thousand people who attended, the state legislature furnished two large tents and set them up in the yard for the occasion. Father Al, a member of the Benedictine Order, is the only young man from St. George parish to enter the priesthood.

In 1949, while Father O'Neill was pastor of St. George, the Joliet diocese was formed, and Ford and Iroquois counties became part of the new diocese.

Pastors who have administered the parish since formation of the Joliet diocese include Fathers Edmund O'Neill, Joseph Jurkovich, William Kirk, James Duffy, and Vytas Memenas, the present pastor.

The Sunday School was active from the first days of the church’s history until the latter part of November, 1952, when it was dissolved. The Ladies’ Aid and the Missionary Society were originally separate organizations but united eventually under the name of Women’s Fellowship Society. Another organization, the Christian Endeavor, was later followed by Pilgrim Fellowship.

Six ministers were ordained during the years the church was in existence: Rev. William Humphrey, Rev. W. E. Dixon, Rev. Ada Heyse, Rev. E. S. Guilbert, Rev. Glenn Utterback, and Rev. William Hobbs. Rev. E. S. Guilbert’s pastorate, from 1929 to 1938, was the longest of the twenty-one ministers who served this church.

In 1944, when Rev. Robert Karn was pastor, the church was yoked with the Roberts church. This association continued until September 10, 1961, when the Melvin church was disbanded.

Congregational Christian Church

A small, enthusiastic group of early settlers founded the First Congregational Church of Melvin in 1888. Old records have been lost and all of their names are not known, but among them were Mrs. E. S. Hunt and her daughter, Mrs. Bookwalter, and the A. P. Gould, L. S. Heath, and F. W. Porter families. They were soon joined by others, including the Holmes, Shilts, Gedelman and Wilson families, familiar names in Melvin to the present time.

Church services were held in the rooms above Gould’s store for about two years during which time the present church building was erected. The first pastor, Rev. Kettle, was also pastor of the Congregational church in Roberts at that time. This church was received into the Central East Association at its meeting in Roberts on September 27, 1887, and the first delegates, Mr. Gould and Mrs. Porter, were given seats in the session.

The first resident pastor was Rev. J. Wood Miller in 1895. In 1897 the tenth anniversary was celebrated with many old members present. The parsonage was built during that year and the next, most of the work being done by members of the church. Rev. W. R. Dixon was pastor, and he and his bride were the first occupants. On October 12, 1937, the church commemorated its fiftieth year with special evening services.

In 1944, when Rev. Robert Karn was pastor, the church was yoked with the Roberts church. This association continued until September 10, 1961, when the Melvin church was disbanded.

Melvin United Methodist Church

In 1869, before Melvin had become a village, a pioneer settler called Father Pierce, who lived at Oliver's Grove (eight miles northwest of Melvin), came into Peach Orchard township and established a regular preaching base at the Grand Prairie school. This site, two miles north of Melvin, together with several other preaching locations in neighboring townships, became known as "Pierce's Mission."

Grand Prairie was added to the Piper City Mission, and Brother William R. Irvine was appointed to the charge. However, he had to relinquish this appointment a few months later, and Father Pierce resumed his work until the fall of 1871.

The Gilman, Clinton, and Springfield railroad was laid in 1870, and soon afterward the village of Melvin came into being. The Grand Prairie appointment was moved to Melvin and its name was changed to Methodist Episcopal Church. The first class consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips, William Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Stephens, and Jane Ogden.

Meetings were held in various places in the village:

the schoolhouse, a hall, the depot, and finally, in a small church owned by the German Methodist congregation. The first quarterly conference was held in the depot on November 26, 1871.

Rev. T. P. Henry was appointed the first pastor in a circuit of three appointments: Roberts, Melvin, and the Bell schoolhouse. Melvin paid $75 to the preacher the first year. Services were held in the Phillips school, Gould's Hall, and the German Methodist church.

By the fall of 1878, membership had grown to the point where a real church home seemed feasible. The new church was built during 1879, and dedicated in June of the following year. It was an unusual building for a village church of that time because it had a furnace, two regular classrooms, and a balcony which was used for a classroom. In those days the church was a social center, and most people, whether members or not, were interested in church projects. Thus, the "Melvin Chapel" became known throughout the surrounding area.

In 1894 the appointment was changed from a circuit to a station by the separation of Roberts and Melvin. This was just a temporary measure, however, for through the years the Melvin Methodist church has been connected with Roberts, Sibley and the Zion Methodist churches.

Shown in the left background is the old German Methodist Church in use until the brick structure was built in 1911.

A new and larger sanctuary was added to the south side of the church building in 1895, and the old part was used as an Epworth League room, with changes being made to accommodate Sunday School classes. Further enlargement came about in 1921, when an excavation under the large sanctuary provided space for a kitchen and dining room.

In 1929, with dreams of a new and modern church some day becoming a reality, the congregation purchased two corner lots at the intersection of First and north Center streets. A campaign for funds had scarcely begun when the Great Depression hit. Funds were returned to the donors; the old building was repaired and decorated, and it continued to serve the congregation for twenty more years.

In 1944 and 1945, during the pastorate of Rev. Milton Heitzman, members selected a building committee to begin making plans for a new church. An additional lot, which adjoined the two corner lots, was donated by members, and in May, 1949, the actual construction began.

During the following years, many people performed untold hours of volunteer labor and conducted numerous financial campaigns to help finance the project. The new church was formally opened for its first full service on Easter Sunday, April 9, 1950, with Rev. Harold Peterson, the pastor, conducting the ceremony.

By 1954, major construction was completed and the church was consecrated on October 31. A service of dedication and inspiration was conducted October 20, 1957, to mark payment of the final debt.

The Central Illinois Conference and the Chicago Conference were united in 1947, and Rev. Harold Peterson, who had come to Melvin in 1946, was the first pastor to serve both Methodist churches. Other pastors who subsequently served under this arrangement were: Rev. Oscar Chindberg, Rev. Fred Drake, Rev. Arthur Webb, Rev. Richard Brinkman, Rev. Dale Kooi, and Rev. Harry Deffley, the present pastor.
In April, 1968, at a meeting of the General Conference and the former Evangelical United Brethren Conference, the Methodist and Evangelical United Brethren churches officially merged under the new name, the “United Methodist Church.”

The merger of the two Melvin churches occurred on March 23, 1969, and joint services were held for the first time on June 1, 1969. Through the merger, the United Methodist Church now has 338 members.

Melvin 4-H Clubs

Birthday Party - 1901.

The Melvin Girls’ 4-H Club was organized in 1935 through the efforts of Hugh D. Triplett, Ford County Farm Adviser. Viola Muehlenpfort was the first leader, succeeded in 1936 by Mrs. O. E. Lippincott. Mrs. Lippincott served in this capacity for thirty-five years, retiring in 1970. Leaders of the present club are Mrs. Harold Copass and Miss Renda Hughes.

The agricultural club, or Melvin Boys’ 4-H, was organized in 1928 with C. W. Haworth as the first leader. George Swain was the county Farm Adviser at that time.

During World War II, Melvin had a third 4-H club, called the Victory Garden Club. Mrs. Francis Swearingen led this group.

The leader with the longest service record in the agriculture club was Hartzell Teesdale. During those years the club reached its largest enrollment of forty-one boys and girls.

In order to be achievement members, boys and girls must show their projects at the county fair, and they may advance to the state fair. Other programs available to 4-H members include the Leadership Training Camp at Monticello, Key Club, National Club Congress, and the International Farm Youth Exchange. During the summer of 1970, Margo Donovan visited Denmark as a member of the Teen Caravan, sponsored by the 4-H Foundation.

4-H is under the auspices of the Cooperative Extension Service. The present Ford County Youth Adviser is Ray Richardson.

Viola, Earl, and Ralph Thackeray.
Agricultural Co-op Extension

The Ford County Extension Service was organized in 1919 to provide farmers with production management information. At that time the farm bureau was organized to give local support to extension programs.

The Melvin unit of Agricultural Extension Services was organized in 1928 with Mr. George Swain as the first farm advisor. This was the only extension service until 1935 when the Home Economics Extension Service was organized. Acting together, these two groups have provided leadership for the 4H Clubs. The 4H program is now an integral part of Co-operative Extension Services. Local financial support is provided by the Ford County Board of Supervisors.

Following George Swain as farm advisor in 1928 were: W. F. Purnell, 1929-35; Hugh Triplett, 1935-46; Arnold Rowand, 1946-67; and James Neuschwander since 1967.

Isaac Bond prepares his 1920 model tractor.
The Melvin unit of the Woman's Relief Corps was organized June 14, 1890. Twenty-seven women were charter members. They helped the G. A. R. in sponsoring Memorial Day services, decorated soldiers' graves, and erected a wooden monument in Melvin Cemetery dedicated to Unknown Dead. When they disbanded in 1925, they planted a maple tree at the north end of the cemetery.
Melvin Township Library

The present Melvin Public Library grew from a project of the Melvin Junior Woman's Club, which was organized in 1934. Club members donated their own books and started a lending library from a small book rack in Kaufman's General Store that year. After Ben Kaufman died in 1935, W. C. Holmes offered shelf space in his general store, and the books were moved there. Volunteers from the Woman's Club and the Junior Woman's Club acted as librarians two days each week.

The Works Progress Administration (WPA) in 1939 made it possible for Melvin to have a real library. The state supplied a collection of books, furnished a lending service from the Illinois State Library, and paid the salary of the librarian, Miss Gertrude Lamoreaux. The village board made the town hall available for space, and paid the heating costs.

In 1942, with the shut-down of WPA Funds, patrons were faced with the choice of closing the library or having a successful referendum for tax support. Voters approved a one-mill tax for a township library, and the state left the books on a "permanent loan" basis. The wall separating the library from the old jail was removed and the added room was used for children's books. The first trustees elected were as follows: Mrs. Edward Freehill, president, Mrs. Edward Dietterle, secretary-treasurer; Walter C. Iehl, Mrs. Henry Ficken, Mrs. Leroy Arends and Miss Adelaide Dixon.

For many years the Melvin Woman's Club gave annual financial support to the library for the purpose of purchasing books and magazines. All of the Melvin churches, many organizations, and individuals contributed books, furniture and equipment. The family of James Long, who has served as president of the village board, gave the librarian's desk in his memory.

The VFW Auxiliary donated the tables and chairs for the children's room and gives money each year toward the purchase of children's books. The American Legion Auxiliary contributes memorial books for its former presidents. Books on gardening have been given by the Melvin Garden Club, and several memorial books have been contributed by the Boy Scouts.

In 1967 the Melvin Public Library joined the new Lincoln Trails Library System of Champaign. Books, phonograph records, pictures, tapes, films and educational material may be borrowed through this organization. A story-hour for children is held every summer. Last year the Library sponsored a summer art course which will be repeated this year.

The book collection in 1939 numbered about 400, and the yearly circulation was around 1,200. Now there are approximately 8,000 books and magazines, and the 1970 circulation was 7,558. In 1970 there were 800 resident and 150 non-resident borrowers, who paid one dollar annually per family for the use of the township library.

The library building was remodeled in 1965.
New glass brick windows, a restroom, and air-conditioning were installed, and the rooms were completely redecorated.

Librarians succeeding Miss Lamoreaux have been as follows: Mrs. Hartzell Teesdale, Mrs. Clyde Wilson, Mrs. Elmer Underwood, Mrs. Howard Arnold, and Mrs.
Pearl Schultz. Mrs. Schultz, librarian since 1959, has held the position longer than any other.

Present trustees include the following persons:
Mrs. Francis Swearingen, president; Mrs. Leroy Arends, vice president; Miss Adelaide Dixon, secretary; Melvin Beacher, treasurer; Mrs. Albert Reitz, Mrs. Dale Moody, and Miss Marcella Long.

Melvin Schools

In the spring of 1870, at an election in which five votes were cast, August Buchholz, Charles Phillips, and William Lackey were elected to the first Melvin school board. Construction of the schoolhouse was begun that fall, at the northeast corner of section 2, on land owned by Charles Phillips (presently Mahlon Dixon’s pasture). In April, 1871, the first term began with Miss Hettie Mathis, teacher, for “six male and eight female” students.

In 1875 a new school which faced north was built on Hunt street at the site of the present residence of Mrs. William Holmes. Miss Clara Huston was the first teacher. By 1883 more room was needed, and a new, two-story building, 30 feet by 50 feet, was constructed adjoining the old school.

Until this time only one teacher taught all subjects in all grades. With the enlarged school, however, two teachers were hired, D. G. Foreman and Miss Mattie Haight, who became Mrs. Foreman in 1886. The upper rooms of the building were finished in 1891, and the school board hired four teachers, including Mr. and Mrs. Foreman who taught until 1901.

On July 1, 1904, work was started on the new school at the west end of Main street. It was built of brick and stone and cost $15,000. It had a large basement, a belfry tower, three classrooms on the first floor, three rooms on the second floor, and a room in the attic for industrial arts students. The building was ready for occupancy in January, 1905. Mrs. Arthur Netherton, Chatsworth, a member of the high school graduating class that year, recalls that on moving day the students gathered their belongings and marched down Main street to their new quarters.

H. M. Rudolph was principal at that time, and the teachers were Deana Onken, Carrie Tilbury, Lelia Moody, and Sadie Worthington. Grade school classes, two to a room, used the first floor and the south room on the second floor, with the high school occupying the remaining space.

Until 1911, Melvin had only a three year high school. Students who wished to have a high school diploma took their fourth year at the Grand Prairie Seminary in Onarga. This school offered the third and fourth years of high school and the first two years of college, or a two-year commercial course. Melvin students usually went by train to Gilman, then transferred to another train to Onarga, where they boarded in private homes.

A class of five graduated in 1919, but the following year there were no graduates. Melvin had lost its accreditation because of crowded conditions, and the three members of the class of 1920, had to go elsewhere for their fourth year.

The new brick school building on west Main in 1905.
The present high school building, located north of Second street, between Center and Green streets, was constructed in 1922, after which the old building was used for the grade school exclusively. Within a year the state returned the high school's accreditation. The new school provided classrooms, offices, kitchen and dining room for home economics, shop for industrial arts and agriculture, chemistry and physics laboratory, auditorium, library and a gymnasium with theater facilities. Until the Melvin-Sibley unit was formed in 1949, the grade school and the high school each had its separate board of education.

In 1942 the hot lunch program was started at the grade school where Edward Freehill had been principal since 1936. (Mr. Freehill retired in 1966, having taught in the Melvin school longer than any other teacher.) The first lunchroom was the northwest corner room on the second floor, used by an earlier generation of high school students as a study room, laboratory and classroom. A cob and coal-burning stove was installed in the cloakroom which became the kitchen. Each student contributed table service and paid ten cents for a hot lunch.

Henry Dutler, high school principal in 1937, originated the "senior class trip" that year. He and Mrs. Dutler took five graduating seniors in the Dutler car to Washington, D. C. and New York City, camping along the way. The trip was so educational and successful that each senior class from then until 1965 took a trip to the east immediately following graduation. These trips were made in private cars at first; later, school and charter buses were used.

Between 1945 and 1947, the one-room country schools around Melvin were closed and students from them came into town. Harold Boundy was the first bus driver. Edward Freehill used his family car for a year and then operated the school jeep for two years to transport pupils who lived off the bus route.

By 1947 enrollment had increased and a larger lunchroom was needed. An addition was built onto the southwest corner of the grade school, and the second-floor lunchroom became a classroom again.

Melvin and Sibley schools consolidated in 1949, with each town retaining its own grade school, first through sixth grades. The junior high school was located in Sibley, and Edward Freehill served as principal of both the junior high and the Sibley grade schools. Bill Coddington was principal of the Melvin-Sibley high school in Melvin; Miss Maude Whiteman was principal of the Melvin grade school; and Ralph Moore was unit superintendent. A single board of education was elected to supervise the three schools of the unit.

A large recreation room was added to the west side of the Melvin grade school in 1956. However, the grade school, in use since 1905, had become unsafe. A new, one-story building adjoining the east side of the high school, was completed in 1961. It contains six classrooms, office space for the unit superintendent, Charles Roth, an all-purpose room, music room, and a cafeteria, used by both the grade and high schools.

From the years when farm boys stayed home from school during the planting and harvest seasons, and few girls finished high school unless they planned to become teachers, school attendance has become not only a privilege but mandatory. The “three R’s” of 1871, just as basic now as they were one hundred years ago, are incorporated into a broad curriculum of college-preparatory and specialized courses aimed at fulfilling the needs and aptitudes of all students.

Education beyond high school is encouraged. Of the forty-one students in the 1971 graduating class, eighteen will attend college; five are enrolled in trade schools; one is entering nurse’s training, and one will study x-ray technology.

The Melvin-Sibley Parents-Teachers Association originated in Sibley in 1929 as the Sibley PTA. Mrs. Alfred Larson was its first president. Although meetings were held in both Melvin and Sibley following consolidation in 1949, the formality of changing the name to "Melvin-Sibley PTA" did not come about until September, 1953.

Programs are designed to carry out the objects of the Parent-Teachers Association and deal with topics such as mental health, exceptional children, fluoridation, civil defense, first aid, new math, special education, guidance and social problems. Various departments within the school have contributed programs and exhibits. Speakers from foreign countries have also been featured.

The list of accomplishments is a long one. The Melvin-Sibley PTA helped administer the oral polio vaccine when it first became available and has sponsored dental fluoride treatments for students since 1954. It has purchased radios, record players, public address systems, and outdoor drinking fountains. Free milk and hot lunches have also been provided for students. The PTA has helped purchase band uniforms and lunchroom plates, and it has promoted full-time kindergarten, junior colleges, and bond issues. The annual PTA picnic, marking the end of the school year, has become a tradition in the community. One of the more unusual PTA activities was in 1940-41 when members helped can fruits and vegetables for the hot-lunch program. Funds have been raised from square dances, paper drives, home talent shows, carnivals, basketball games, and soup suppers.

Membership reached its peak in 1957-1959 with 159 members, during Mrs. Albert Froidcoeur's term as president. In April, 1966, a special program honored Edward Freehill, who retired after thirty-four years of teaching. Mr. Freehill set the pattern for cooperation between the school and the PTA.

During the current school term, Mrs. Jane Gudenrath and Mrs. Ted Kendrick, president and vice-president, respectively, are serving second terms. Mrs. Philip Birkner is secretary and Mrs. Scooter Mize is treasurer.

Melvin Home Extension

The Ford County Home Extension is part of the Cooperative Extension Service, United States Department of Agriculture, University of Illinois. The Melvin Unit is one of fifteen home extension units in the county.

"Home Bureau," as it was known until the last few years, was organized in 1936 while Hugh Triplett was county farm adviser. Juanita Glascock, who later became Mrs. C. E. Stabler, was the first home adviser.

For many years the Unit met in the upstairs room of the Farm Bureau building. The ladies purchased much of the kitchen equipment and served meals for various Farm Bureau and 4-H activities. Since the new Cooperative Extension building has been completed, meetings have been held there or in the homes of members.

Old records and programs indicate that the ladies in the earlier days were interested in many of the same topics that are discussed and presented today, such as "Counting Calories," "Mental Hygiene," and "Recreation."

World War II brought some special problems for the homemaker. Programs included topics such as these: "Making Good Use of Clothing on Hand;" "Restyling Old Clothing;" "Living in the Tomorrow;" "Making Use of Leftovers;" and "War-time Hospitality." Saving waste fats and wastepaper was emphasized. Members went in groups to Kankakee to donate blood.

Marian Simon, home adviser from 1950 to 1959, served the greatest number of years. Her crafting skills are reflected in the homes of many members who learned their techniques under her direction. Mrs. Rebecca Mason is the most recent extension adviser, having departed Ford County in February, 1971. Mrs. Harriett Coomer, her successor, began her term in March, 1971.

Six charter members are still active in the Melvin Unit: Mrs. Ralph Busick, Mrs. Gilbert Dueringer, Mrs. O. E. Lippincott, Mrs. Louis Peters, Mrs. George Stilwell, and Mrs. Harry Strelluf. Two more charter members, Mrs. W. P. Kenward and Mrs. George Eppelheimer, reside in Melvin but are no longer active.

The Melvin Woman's Club was organized in the spring of 1933 at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Dueringer. Mrs. A. C. Watson was the first president, and Mrs. George Jehl the first vice-president. The club affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs that same year and with the General Federation of Women's Clubs in 1938. The purposes of the club include community service, the promotion of intellectual culture, and companionship.

The formation of a Junior Woman's Club was sponsored in 1934. This group was composed of young unmarried women who were responsible for the beginning of the present Melvin Library. The Junior Club disbanded in 1943, and most of its members joined the Melvin Woman's Club.

One of the club's major projects was assisting the Melvin Library. Funds for the purchase of new books were contributed regularly for many years. In 1943 the club sponsored a Tag Day which netted $228 for the benefit of the library.

A movie projector, presented to the high school in 1939, was the first projector to be owned by the school. In 1950, $100 was given to the Melvin-Sibley school unit to help purchase band uniforms.

The club has contributed to a number of scholarships which have enabled high school students to attend music, conservation and art summer camps. Various projects of the Illinois Federation and the General Federation of Women's Clubs receive support, as do local projects including the Red Cross, Cancer Fund, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, and community Christmas baskets.
Three members have served as president of the Ford County Federation: Mrs. John Kenward, Mrs. Roy Thackeray, and Mrs. Lowell Dueringer.

The present officers are: Mrs. James Neuschwander, president; Mrs. John Donovan, vice-president; and Mrs. Marilyn Steinman, secretary-treasurer. Two charter members, Mrs. Gilbert Dueringer and Mrs. Leroy Arends, are still active in the club.

Independent Order of Odd Fellows

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Lodge No. 157, was instituted in Melvin March 6, 1888. It consolidated with Paxton Lodge No. 418 on February 16, 1948. Paxton Lodge closed August 18, 1969.

American Legion Auxiliary

The American Legion Auxiliary to Post No. 642 was chartered on December 15, 1932. Clyde Dietterle was the president, and Iva Arends and Irene Thompson were first and second vice president, respectively. Other officers were: Elizabeth McLaughlin, chaplain; Eva Spellmeyer, treasurer; Gussie Kiener, historian; Arlene Thompson, secretary, and Bernice Beck, sergeant-at-arms.

The Auxiliary engages in a number of activities. With the help of other patriotic organizations, it sponsors a public program on Veterans' Day and Memorial Day, and provides wreaths and flags for the graves of the Veterans. Another yearly project is the sponsorship of a girl from the high school junior class as a delegate to Girls' State, which is held in June at Jacksonville, Illinois.

School children compete in annual essay and poppy poster contests, sponsored by the organization. The Auxiliary remembers Melvin servicemen with a cash gift and a greeting card at Christmas, and contributes to each organization represented by the United Fund.

Members have collected thousands of coupons given by the manufacturer of a dog food. These are used to secure leader dogs for blind veterans. Vouchers for almost $4,000 worth of donations have been credited to the Melvin Auxiliary.

Do you suppose there were many coupons in products when Glen Thompson had this store?

Each month the organization gives ten dollars to hospitals for their cigarette funds and also supplies favors for hospital trays. It has contributed generously to Child Welfare, the Illinois Soldiers’ and Sailors’ Children’s School at Normal, Illinois, and to the seven-point rehabilitation program of the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Irene Shives, rehabilitation chairman for the past ten years, has been in charge of taking contributions of used clothing to the Danville and Manteno hospitals. She also supplies the Veterans' Craft Shop in Chicago with carpet rags and used stamps for soldiers' transportation needs.

Mrs. Grace Boundy is now serving her fifth year as president, Adelaide Dixon is first vice-president, and Dorothy Holmes is second vice-president. The other officers include: Marge Freehill, secretary; Ruth Steinman, treasurer; Anna Gudenrath, chaplain; Pearl Roberts, historian; Anna Hays, sergeant-at-arms, and Ena Thompson, assistant sergeant-at-arms.

Melvin State Bank

John Iehl and George T. Arends established the Melvin State Bank as a private banking house in November, 1890. In those early days it was known as “Iehl & Co. Bankers.”

The first charter was issued to John Iehl, George T. Iehl, Henry Arends, Andrew Arends, and W. P. Kenward, on August 31, 1920, and it became the Commercial State Bank of Melvin. On February 4, 1959, the name was changed to Melvin State Bank.

Muryl M. Sturm is president; C. Glen Miller, vice-president; James O. Arnold, executive vice-president and cashier, and Margaret B. Roth, assistant cashier.

Boy Scouting in Melvin began in 1941 when a charter for Troop 31 was issued by Arrowhead Council of Champaign. Lowell Dueringer was the first scoutmaster, and the Melvin Community Club was the sponsoring organization. In 1946 the troop number was changed to Troop 34, under the sponsorship of Melvin Lodge A. F. & A. M., with Milton Heitzman serving as scoutmaster.

There was a lull in scouting activity until 1953, when Russell Taylor as scoutmaster chartered Troop 34, under the sponsorship of VFW Post 6334. This sponsorship continued through 1968, with 370 “boy years” represented on the official charter. Among the six men who served as scoutmaster during these years William McBride’s term (six years) was the longest.

In 1962, with Jack Donovan as Explorer Adviser, under the sponsorship of the Melvin Lions Club, the Explorer Scouts camped at the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico for a two-week wilderness camping experience.

In 1963, again under the leadership of Jack Donovan, the Explorers enjoyed a once-in-a-lifetime boyhood experience when they spent a week on a United Nations Navy destroyer out of Mayport, Florida. Few Explorer Scouts in the United States are afforded such an opportunity. The boys worked on several money-making projects requiring community support to finance these trips.

In 1966 Explorer Adviser Jack Moody took eight boys on a rugged canoe trip in the wilds of Minnesota. There they rowed and portaged five days, with only a map and rationed supplies, coupled with their Scouting skills, to get them back to home port.

Cub Scouting for boys eight through eleven years of age has been sponsored continuously by Melvin VFW Post 6334 since 1955, when Clarence Bitner as cubmaster, and three den mothers, Mrs. Harold Davis, Mrs. Irene Dale, and Mrs. Lucille Wright, began the program with nineteen boys.

In the ensuing years Raymond DeFries, Floyd Ford, James Arnold, Martin Watterson, Willis Janssen, Clifford Waller, Millard Cox, and Charles Nielsen have served as scoutmaster. The major work in the individual dens has been done by thirty-seven different women whose job it was to supervise the 395 “boy years” spent in Cubbing. Present den mothers are Mrs. James Arnold, Mrs. Dayo E. Thompson, and Mrs. Glenn Clauss.

Until his death in 1965, Roy D. “Tick” Thackeray was Neighborhood Commissioner for all local scouting groups, lending much time and energy to local needs. At the same time, he represented the area on Northern District committees.

Mr. Scouter, Roy D. “Tick” Thackeray, Neighborhood Commissioner and scouting booster for many years in Melvin.
With tremendous financial support from the community, a Scout cabin was built in 1961 on the west side of the Melvin Fairgrounds lake. It provides an ideal location for activities throughout the year.

The summer ball program is in charge of volunteer coaches, while the Cub Scouts are usually coached by the cubmaster. James Arnold and William Curtis have coached the past three years. The older boys were coached by Rev. Ronald Krueger for several years and during the past six years by Wendell Thackeray.

A baseball field was constructed on the northwest corner of the Melvin Fairgrounds in 1959. This field was built and is maintained with money collected from visiting hunters enlisted in the program during the hunting season—hence, the name “Hunter's Field”. For many years John Pool has helped organize the farmers in this project each autumn.

Throughout the years, typical Scouting activities such as Council Camporees, District Skill Days of Competition, Camp Drake sessions near Danville, Illinois, and local overnight camps have been enjoyed by the Scouts and adult Scorers of the Melvin community.

Girl Scouts of America

Girl Scouting in Melvin was organized in 1965 under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Heien, who was junior leader until 1970. In that year Mrs. Dayo E. Thompson became the leader for girls in grades four through six.

Brownie scouts, for girls in the second and third grades, were under the direction of Mrs. Don Allen and Mrs. Harry Hanson in 1965. Mrs. Robert Painter now has the Brownie troop. Mrs. Don Trimmer led the first Cadette troop, composed of seventh and eighth grade girls, in 1969. The following year a combined Melvin-Sibley Cadette troop was formed with Mrs. J. R. Heien.

Summer Day Camp, with five daily sessions, has been provided each year by local adult volunteers. In 1965 and 1966 the camp was held in cooperation with Gibson City.

By 1968 the MARS (Melvin and Roberts, Sibley) Neighborhood was formed, and day camp was held at the Melvin Fairgrounds for all Girl Scouts of the neighborhood. Mrs. Robert Sinn is Neighborhood Commissioner.

The Green Meadows Council, to which the Melvin units belong, operates several established camp areas. One of these is Camp Wa-Ha-Na-Ha located east of Gilman, Illinois. This facility is for not-so-rugged camping experiences. It is maintained by funds from the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale which is generously supported by the Melvin community.
This picture shows J. S. Holverson in his rural mail delivery wagon in 1910. Holverson and Jake Miller were the first rural carriers.

The Ladies Auxiliary to Melvin Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 6334 was organized on July 11, 1949. This women's group is a "service" organization, not a social order. It is composed of the mothers, wives, sisters, and daughters of soldiers, sailors, and marines who have seen foreign service.

The monies earned by the Melvin Auxiliary have been contributed to national, department, and district projects for veterans' hospitals, rehabilitation of veterans, child welfare, cancer research, and the VFW National Home. Each year members sell VFW Buddy Poppies.

Local community service projects provide aid for hospitals and nursing homes in the area, books for the library, flags for schools, community Christmas baskets, and aid for local charities and local servicemen. The members assist with Memorial and Veterans' Day programs and help with the maintenance of the local VFW post home on Melvin's Main street.

Charter members who have retained their membership are Grace Arnold, Margaret Roth, Mary Cothern, Minnie Cothern, Ruth Donovan, Geraldine Harms, Evelyn McPherson, Myrtle Schneider, Aldene Thackeray, Emma Thompson, Vada Timcke and Ardelle Walle.

Past presidents, in the order they held office include the following persons: Ruth Donovan, Aldene Thackeray, Rita Schroen, Mary Cothern, Margaret Roth, Ardelle Walle, Rose Day, Marilyn Jansen, Geraldine Harms, Myrtle Schneider, Geraldine Gravlin, JoAnn Milligan, and Grace Arnold.

Melvin Veterans of Foreign Wars

The Melvin Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 6334 was authorized to organize and form a post on May 27, 1946, with forty-five members signing the charter. The membership has now grown to eighty.

The parent organization, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, established in 1899, is the oldest veterans organization in the nation. Membership is restricted to those who have been honorably discharged and have served their country overseas in time of emergency. The official insignia, the Cross of Malta, is a real foreign service decoration, recognized and protected by the United States government as such.

Following are the objectives of the VFW: To insure the national security through maximum military strength; to speed the rehabilitation of the nations' disabled and needy veterans; to assist the widows and orphans and the dependents of disabled and needy veterans; and to promote Americanism through education in patriotism, and constructive service to the members' own communities.

The local VFW post contributes to the VFW National Home near Eaton Rapids, Michigan, a home for widows and orphans of deceased or disabled members. It aids comrades in distress, veterans' hospitals local charities, and community projects. The uniformed color guard participates in patriotic programs and parades at home and away and at military funerals for departed comrades.

In addition, the Melvin organization has sponsored Cub Scouts and Boys Scouts in Melvin for nineteen years and also has developed and managed Little League and softball teams for boys. It maintains a VFW park for the community to use for picnics and overnight camping.

In 1946 the Melvin VFW purchased the former Melvin State Bank building from the late Fred Howk for a post home, which it recently remodeled. Rooms on both the first and second floors are available for rental for other community affairs.

In March, 1971, Melvin VFW Post No. 6334 observed its 25th anniversary with a dinner party and program. Charter members were honored.

Melvin Post No. 500, Grand Army of the Republic, was organized on March 18th, 1885. Mr. P. E. Brown, Commander of the Chatsworth Post, installed the following officers: James Dixon, Post Commander; Thomas Ellis, Senior Vice Commander; Lon Dilley, Junior Vice Commander; Dr. E. B. Perry, Quartermaster; Dr. E. Perry, Secretary; P. B. Leach, Chaplain; William Hunt, Officer of the Day; Samuel Shreves, Post Guard; James Stephens, and George Dixon, Quartermaster/Sergeant.

The Post aided the widows of Civil War veterans, sponsored Memorial Day services, and bought headstones for soldiers' unmarked graves. The last secretary's minutes for the Post are dated December 10, 1898.

Melvin Lions Club

The first Melvin Lions Club meeting, which was sponsored by the Gibson City Lions Club, took place on May 1, 1952, at the American Legion Hall. At the second meeting, on May 15, 1952, the club voted to hold its meetings on the second and fourth Tuesday nights of each month. Charter Night was June 12, 1952, and of those forty charter members, thirteen are still active in the club today.

Meetings were held in the Masonic dining room. The meals were prepared and served by one of the local churches until September, 1961, when the meeting place was changed to the Evergreen Cafe.

Ralph Moore was the first president. Lions Charles Nielsen, C. Glen Miller, and James O. Arnold have served as zone chairmen, providing local representation on the District Governor's cabinet. James Neuschwander is currently serving as president.

The first major project of the club was to find a doctor for Melvin. A committee was appointed and in June, 1953, Leroy Arends, Henry Schaeffer, C. E. Wilson, and T. D. Thackeray went to Kankakee to interview Dr. A. L. deMola. As a result of these efforts, Dr. deMola came to Melvin in July, 1953.

The first safety project, on November 29, 1952, was placing Scotch tape reflectors on forty bicycles. In 1959 the club assisted in planting 283 trees to replace the many dead elm trees. In 1961 the Lions placed trash barrels on Melvin streets to keep the village clean and attractive. In November, 1963, a committee was appointed to work with the Village Board in placing street signs in Melvin. A year later the task was accomplished. Other projects included planting more trees, decorating the streets for Christmas and painting parking lines on the streets.

The club conducts a Halloween carnival for Melvin youngsters each year, a project begun in 1952. It also annually presents a trophy to the high school boy who is selected for his good sportsmanship in the athletic program. Gerald Lackey, the first recipient of this award, is now an active Lion. Each year since 1956, local Lions have sent a delegate to Boys State: Patrick Freehill was the first boy to receive this honor.

The one outstanding project of all Lions clubs and Lions International is to help the blind. Institutions supported by Lions International are the Leader Dog School, the Hadley School for the Blind, and Camp Lions, where blind children can experience camping activities under proper supervision and guidance.

The Melvin Lions Club has helped local persons with sight handicaps by giving record players or by assisting in securing talking book records. Over the years the club has always been ready to help children who need eye examinations or glasses but who are unable to get them for themselves.

Two meetings each year are designated as "Ladies' Night." Another custom is "Farmers' Night," when

Royal Neighbors of America

Louisa Kaufman, Charter Member and first Chancellor.

Rose Valley Camp No. 986, Royal Neighbors of America, was organized April 26, 1898, with thirteen beneficial and ten social members. Ella Thackeray, a charter member, gave it the name "Rose Valley" because of the many rose gardens in the community. During the early years of its organization, the Camp met in the hall of the Modern Woodmen, an affiliate society. It now meets in the members' homes.

The first officers of the Camp were as follows:

Oracle, Emma L. Swisher; Recorder, Clara E. Gedelman; Receiver, Helena Whippy; Vice Oracle, Carrie Holverson; Chancellor, Louisa M. Kaufman; Inner Sentinel, Frances McDaniel, and Outer Sentinel, Mary Underwood.

The Royal Neighbors is a fraternal organization whose purpose is to write life insurance for the protection of its members. At present sixty members are covered by $75,500 worth of life insurance. The society belongs to the Ford County Association of Royal Neighbors of America.

Rose Valley Camp donates to civic projects such as the Community Fund and Christmas baskets, and in 1943 members purchased $6,525 worth of war bonds. The group also supports a Royal Neighbors of America home in Davenport, Iowa, and a scholarship fund for Royal Neighbor college students.

The local organization has eleven fifty-year members: Julia Kenward, Ida Bond, Coletta Bickel, Estelle Dickman, Margaret Strelluf, Beulah Sheppard, Grace Rudolph, Carrie Dietterle, Gwendolyn Nelson, Leora Boundy and Ethel Wurzburger. Louisa Kaufman, who died in 1957, was the last surviving charter member.

Ford County Fair

William Haworth, the vocational agriculture teacher, had an idea: Why not sponsor an annual community fair? His plan drew support from others, including John Beck, Clarence “Tiny” Wilson, Walter C. Iehl, W. C. Holmes, G. F. Howk, and Roscoe Buchholz. And so it was that in 1926, the Ford County Fair of Melvin was born. It was called the “Melvin Community Fair” then, however. Not until 1941, when the fair was incorporated, did it become the “Ford County Fair of Melvin,” upon a motion made by M. I. Kendrick at a regular meeting of the Fair Association.

One tent housed all exhibits at that first fair, with the high school gymnasium being used for the household exhibits. Entertainment during the early years consisted of a football game and one or two professional acts. Each year the fair grew in size. Finally, exhibits, tents, and the Wilson Show filled the grounds and several adjacent lots.

The quality of the entertainment improved also, and the fair became famous for its “free acts.” Perhaps the top act of all time was the Hustrei Troop, a high-wire act which won world-wide acclaim. Another important part of the entertainment was the dance. Orchestras, such as Ray Bozarth and Tiny Hill, played, and the customers paid five cents per dance. Later, all-evening tickets were sold. In 1953 a Guy Lombardo ticket cost $2.50.

Other famous bands performing at the Melvin fair were Eddie Howard, Art Kassel, Tommy Dorsey, and Jan Garber. This era passed and the young people turned to rock-and-roll groups such as the “One-Eyed Jacks.” Modern entertainment includes a demolition derby, beauty pageant, tractor pull, home talent show, and the dances.

By 1951, the fair had outgrown the space north of the high school. The Fair Association sold six residential lots on north Center street, and used this money to purchase seventeen acres of land at the east edge of Melvin from Harry Benz. In 1955 seven more acres of land adjoining the fairgrounds were purchased from S. E. Shives, making a total of twenty-five acres.

The first permanent building on the new site was a 30' x 90' concrete block building for the household exhibits. Other buildings have been added, until the present appraisal of the grounds is now set at $100,000. In addition to the buildings, there is also a small lake and a bleacher area capable of seating 3,000 persons.

In April, 1956, an agreement with the Ford County 4-H Club gave that organization permission to hold its fair on the Melvin fairgrounds each year. The 4-H group donated $4,000 to the building fund for this privilege.

Premiums of $56,000 are now offered each year in the livestock, vegetable, grain, and household exhibits. The following figures show the contrast in amounts given in premiums in 1932 with the 1971 amounts shown in parentheses: beef, $85 ($11,325); dairy $184 ($12,405); hogs, $120 ($10,507); and sheep, $45 ($9,618).

Clarence “Tiny” Wilson and Walter C. Lehl served as president and secretary respectively during the early years. Other secretaries have been Ralph M. Otto, C. D. Thompson, Louis A. Freehill, Arnold B. Rowand, and D. M. Townsend. T. D. Thackeray has served as president since 1936.

Remember those hours and hours of cooking on the old cookstove and washing dishes right up until time to serve lunch? But what a good chance it was to exchange recipes, ideas and just plain gossip.

Activities include an annual horse show, summer trail rides, and participation in parades in area towns. Last fall members assisted with parking cars at the M & W Gear Company Power Show at Stanford, Illinois.

American Legion Post 642

The American Legion Post 642, of Melvin, was formed in March, 1919, by the veterans of World War I. Their objective was to honor their comrades killed in World War I, and to provide financial and medical assistance to the many veterans who were wounded and needed help. To this day, Melvin Post 642 assists veterans entering hospitals and gives financial aid to those organizations needing help, as well as to individuals in the community.

Following are the names of surviving members of the original post: George Arends, Leslie Arends, LeRoy Arends, Ormond Brownlee, Remus Curtis, John Gudenrath, Obed Lippincott, Clyde McLaughlin, Louis Peters, Ralph Roberts, Henry Siems, C. D. Thompson, and Clyde Wilson, Sr.

Post 642 celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in 1969. Unfortunately, early records of the organization were burned during the 1950's; therefore, a complete account is impossible to obtain.

Present officers include the following persons: Lloyd A. Falck, commander; Robert Hornickel, vice commander; Mahlon Dixon, adjutant; Emerson Muehlenpfort, finance officer.

The lodge celebrated its golden anniversary in 1941, and observed its seventy-fifth year with a dinner at the Evergreens Cafe in 1966. A membership of over 100 has been maintained for many years.

Six men have held membership for over fifty years: Charles Milligan, C. W. McLaughlin, Henry C. Dutler, LeRoy Arends, Arthur Netherton (sixty-four years), and Joe A. Mies (sixty-two years).

Melvin Fire Department

In the years before 1912, Melvin was protected from fire by volunteer bucket brigades. There were three main cisterns in the village: one at the corner of First and Crossley streets, a second at the corner of Main and Crossley streets, and the third on the south side of Main street between Center and Green streets.

The volunteer firemen of those early years were hampered by the lack of water, water pressure, and equipment for fighting fires. When a fire did occur, it was usually impossible to save the building on fire and most of the efforts of the firemen were directed to saving surrounding buildings. One volunteer of those early bucket brigades attempted to carry a tub of water by himself to fight a large crib fire at the end of Main street and had only a gallon or two of water left in the tub when he reached the blaze.

Following the building of the Melvin waterworks in 1912, water from hydrants was available for firefighting. A two-wheel cart, pulled by men, was used to carry the hose.

In the early 1930's, a chemical truck was devised by the firemen. This furnished pressure for country fires and was used effectively numerous times.

The present volunteer five department was established in 1949 in cooperation with Roberts. Thus the official name of the organization is “Roberts-Melvin Community Fire Protection District.” The first trustees were: Arthur D. Seng of Roberts, and Arnold B. Rowand and Albert Reitz of Melvin. At present, Raymond Kietzman of Loda has replaced Arnold Rowand.

The present equipment at Melvin includes three large pumper trucks. They are housed in a modern block building on Center street just north of the business district. The firehouse has a kitchen which is used by firemen and their families who have formed a social group which meets regularly for dinners and parties. Funds for these events are provided by each fireman donating a share of his attendance pay.

Those who have served as Fire Chief since 1930 are: Charles Hodges, Roy D. Fickwiler, Ben Hoekstra, T. D. Thackeray, and Kenneth Gravlin. The present officers are: Fred W. Thackeray, Chief; Don Allen, Assistant Chief; Floyd Ford, Assistant Chief; Victor Hasenauer, treasurer; and Donald Trimmer secretary.

Peach Orchard Township

SITE OF PEACH ORCHARD FOR WHICH PEACH ORCHARD TOWNSHIP WAS NAMED 1868 —— 1968

Peach Orchard monument located 3 miles west and 2½ miles north of Melvin.

Peach Orchard Township was established on September 15, 1868. Exactly one hundred years later on September 15, 1968, a historical marker was dedicated and placed on the farm land where the peach orchard was planted in 1855 and from which the township derived its name. Supervisors since 1900 include O. K. Boshell, John Iehl, Onno Arends, H. K. Reehl, George T. Iehl, W. C. Iehl, Earl E. DeWall (longest serving: 1951-1971) and John Donovan (elected April, 1971).
These houses are classic examples of 1890 architecture. The J. A. Schafer house, above is pictured in 1897. It has since been remodeled extensively into its present style, the home of Charles and Mary Lippincott on north Green Street. Below is shown the Henry Spellmeyer house built on north Center Street in 1894. It burned in 1969. Notice the picket fences, board sidewalks, built in eavesspouts, elaborate ornamentation, cedar shingles, and out buildings.
Melvin Newspapers

Melvin's first newspaper, The Melvin Transcript, was first published in 1893. The pressroom was located in the basement of the Arends building. Mr. I. T. Van Note was the founder of the paper and had as his assistants A. B. Stansbury as foreman and Wesley Ashbey as "printer's devil."

After publishing the paper for nine months, Mr. Van Note sold it to F. R. Osborn who continued editing the paper for the next six years.

During the next three years, the paper was published by the following: C. J. Alye (3 months), A. E. Potts of Gibson City (1 year), Mrs. Fred Carroll (1 year), and J. L. Hayden of Sibley (1 year).

In 1904 the paper was purchased by C. W. Cunningham who, in that year, published a "Citizens' and Business Men's Edition" of the Melvin Transcript. Its editor described the publication as "An Historical Number, with Sketches of the Business Life of the Leading Merchants and Professional Men of Melvin, together with a Chronicle of the Leading Events in the History of our Village."

Mr. W. O. Sanders of Roberts was the next owner and publisher of the paper and he sold it to Bill Jones in 1908 at which time the name was changed to The Melvin Motor.

Mr. G. F. Howk purchased the paper in 1910 and continued its publication until 1932 when his son-in-law, T. D. Thackeray, took over as editor and publisher. In 1945 the name was changed to Ford County Press when the Roberts Herald was purchased by Mr. Thackeray who combined it with The Melvin Motor.

This press printed the 1893 Transcript, and is still in operable condition, and owned by the Ford County Press.

Enoch S. Hunt

Enoch S. Hunt was born in Marshal County, Illinois, October 16, 1833, son of Cornelius and Elizabeth Sidle. Hunt, pioneers from New Jersey and Muskingum County, Ohio. He married Mary Griffin, of Wenona, in 1854. Their four children were born in La Salle County. William, the only son, died in 1863 at the age of two years, and is buried in Cumberland cemetery, near Wenona. Mary, Esther, and Jessie were born on the Hunt farm, near Wenona.

The family came to Ford County in 1868. It was through Enoch Hunt's efforts that the Illinois Central Railroad was laid across the south side of his farm in 1871. He was also responsible for securing a Paxton surveyor to survey sixty-five acres of his farm on which to build a town. He platted the first and second additions, named the street, and on July 18, 1871, dedicated the town of Melvin, named in honor of the president of the new railroad. Some wished to call it "Huntsville," but Enoch declined the honor.

The Hunts lived on this farm until about 1904 when they moved into their new home on the corner of Main and Hunt streets. He built a big barn in which he kept his bay horse, Alex. It was ever his delight to gather up the little folks after school for a ride in his red cutter in the winter and in a buggy in the summer.
Mrs. Hunt died in 1906, and Enoch died in 1917. Mary married William Shreves and they had two children, Genevieve and Richard. Their descendants live in Hammond, Indiana. Esther married Thomas Ellis and their only child, a son, lives in Colorado. Jessie married David Bookwalter and had one son, Claude. Claude’s daughter, Maureen, lives in California. There are not very many living descendants of Enoch Hunt.

William B. Holmes . . .

William B. Holmes, first settler in Peach Orchard Township, was born in Derbyshire, England September 23, 1820, on a farm which had been in the Holmes family for four hundred years. At the age of fifteen, his father apprenticed him to a coach-maker for a term of six years.

In 1849, he and his brother, Charles, sailed from Bristol, England, to New York City, a forty-nine-day trip. He started west, arriving at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, where he purchased forty acres of land which he cleared of timber and farmed for a few years. Then he moved to Vermillion County, Illinois, and worked as a carpenter until 1855, when he came to what is now Peach Orchard Township.

He purchased 320 acres of government land and built a house and in 1847, he brought his family to the new home. He plowed the first prairie sod in the township.

Mr. Holmes’ wife, Eliza Wren, was born in Bristol, England, on October 5, 1820. Her father was a professor of music and a descendant of Christopher Wren, the great architect of London, who built St. Paul’s Cathedral and other noted buildings.

The Holmes’s lost six children in infancy. Their son, Bart, was a horse buyer from Melvin, John W. operated an express line in Omaha, Nebraska, and William was an attorney in Effingham, Illinois. The daughter, Fannie, was the first white child to be born in Peach Orchard Township, on May 29, 1857.

John W. Holmes was the father of William C. Holmes, who was in business on Melvin’s Main street for sixty years.

William B. Holmes was at one time supervisor of Peach Orchard Township, township assessor, township commissioner, school trustee, and served fourteen years as justice of the peace. He retired to Melvin in 1888, and died in 1897.

John S. Hunt . . .

John S. Hunt was born near Danville, Vermilion County, Illinois, on January 4, 1829. His parents, Cornelius and Jane Hunt, were moving from Muskingum County, Ohio, to Putnam County, Illinois, and stopped near Danville for a year to raise food to continue their journey.

He joined a party to go to the gold fields of California in 1849, and was gone three years. Upon his return in 1852, while living in LaSalle County, he married Jane Burley.

He came to Ford County in 1867, bought 900 acres of government land, and built the second house in the township, one-half mile north of the Melvin cemetery. Here they raised their family of eight children.

He and William Holmes named the township when it was formed on September 15, 1868. He was the first tax collector, a school director, supervisor, gave land for the Melvin cemetery, and was one of the founders of the Methodist church.

He built a home on south Green street, and retired in 1882. He died on April 11, 1909.

The John S. Hunt Children
James Dixon . . .

James Dixon was born in Manchester, England, June 7, 1836. He came to America with his parents at the age of three years, and they settled in LaSalle County, Illinois.

He enlisted in the 17th Illinois Volunteers during the Civil War. Following the war, he operated a brick yard in Ottawa, Illinois. He married Jane Hunt in 1865. In 1867, they moved to Peach Orchard township, and he became the township's first supervisor. He died in 1904.

Hartmann Bros. Building was formerly a Drug Store in 1917.

This matched team of black percherons, named Bess and Beauty, were raised by the young James Dixon shown here on the left with his cousin, Edward Dixon, in 1897.

The hearse for funerals provided by Earnest Houk, undertaker of Roberts and Piper City, was drawn by these horses. Mr. Dixon kept these horses until they died of old age. Beauty's hide was then used to make the fur lap robe shown with the Dixon twins, pictured above.

T. D. Thompson . . .

T. D. Thompson was born December 4, 1847, in Monroe County, Ohio. In 1864, the family moved to Rutland, Illinois, and in 1869, after his marriage to Eliza Hobbs, he came to Peach Orchard township. He built the first house in Melvin, and his son, Clyde, was the first child born in Melvin.

T. D. Thompson was postmaster, first station agent, had a general merchandise store, and took an active part in church, school, and community affairs.

William Gash . . .

William Gash was born in England in 1837. In 1858, he came to America and lived in Grundy County, Illinois, until 1869, when he came to Ford County. He was road commissioner, township collector, township assessor, and served as justice of the peace for twenty years. His wife, the former Sarah Bevins, was mid-wife for the early settlers. No road was too muddy or too deep with snow to keep her from the bedside of a mother who needed her.

George T. Arends . . .

George T. Arends was born in Peoria, Illinois, on August 9, 1849. The family moved to Peach Orchard Township in 1870, and in 1874, he married Talea Weiss. He is the father of Congressman Leslie C. Arends, the only survivor of a family of nine children.

In 1872, Mr. Arends and his brother-in-law, John Lehl, became owners of the first grain elevator in Melvin. In 1890, they established the first bank, known as Lehl and Company. Mr. Lehl died in 1932, and Mr. Arends died in 1934.

The purpose of the Melvin Garden Club is to learn about amateur gardening, to aid in protecting native trees, plants, birds, and soil, and to encourage civic planting. The first meeting of this organization was held at the home of Janie Shilts on May 9, 1930, when Katherine Mohr and Janie Shilts were elected president and vice president, respectively. Other officers were Sarah Guilbert, corresponding secretary, and Tena Williams, treasurer.

In 1931 the club organized a junior club which had thirty-three members. There were four groups: Kindergarten, four to six years; Sprouters, seven to eight years; Climbers, nine to eleven years; and Masters, thirteen to fifteen years. They planted gardens, held flower shows at which prizes were awarded, and discussed gardening.

One of the club's major projects was raising money for the public drinking fountain, which was installed in 1936 on the northwest corner of Main and Center streets. A flower show was held and many cakes and gallons of homemade ice cream were sold to help finance the purchase and installation of the fountain.

The club landscaped the Melvin Library grounds and placed several gardening books in the library. Members have planted many trees, shrubs, and flowers around the school buildings and at various places in the village. They have donated to projects such as the Permanent Home of the National Council of State Garden Clubs; the Volo and Wauconda Bog Fund, Evanston, Illinois; Lincoln Memorial Gardens, Springfield, Illinois; the Melvin United Fund; and other community projects.

Club members have toured the Myrtle Walgreen estate, Dixon, Illinois; Morton Arboretum, Lisle, Illinois; Lilacia Park, Lombard, Illinois, and Harold Stevens' rock garden in Paxton, Illinois. They have also attended several flower shows in Chicago.

The present officers are Ruth Reitz, president; Bethel Peters, vice-president; Wilma Miller, secretary-treasurer; Irene Thompson, publicity chairman, and Mabel Spellmeyer, sunshine chairman.

Persons operating or residing on land purchased by their grandfathers one hundred years ago, making them "century farmers," include the following:

Ronald Buchholz
His grandfather, A. Buchholz, purchased his land in 1867 and farmed until his retirement. Then his son, Frank, farmed the land until his death in 1954. Mr. Buchholz is the present operator.

Earl Thackeray
His grandfather, John Thackeray, bought the land in 1867. He was succeeded by his son, J. Edward, and now Mr. Thackeray farms the land.

Charles Spellmeyer
Mr. Spellmeyer is Melvin vicinity's oldest resident, having resided on the farm of his birth for almost ninety-nine years. His father, Henry Spellmeyer, settled there in 1868. Mr. Spellmeyer tells of the many snakes in the prairie grasses when the sod was being plowed. Farmers always had to carry clubs with them. He can remember snakes crawling through the cracks of the kitchen floor.

Pauline Arends Lippincott
Mrs. Lippincott lives on the farm purchased by her grandfather, George O. Arends, in 1867. Her father, John Arends, farmed there until his death in 1911, and he was succeeded by her brother, Charles. Pauline and her husband, Obed Lippincott, have operated the land since their marriage.

Elizabeth Boundy
Miss Boundy still lives on the place settled by her grandfather, William Boundy, in 1870. Then her father, Samuel Boundy, farmed it until his death.

Leland Netherton
Mr. Netherton farms land settled by his grandfather, Henry Netherton, in 1868. Sam Netherton, a son, operated the land for two or three years in partnership with his brother, Arthur. Arthur continued to farm until his retirement in 1945, and was succeeded by his son, Leland.

Franklin Sharp
His great grandfather, Edgar Sharp, came to Wall Township in 1858. The farm has been operated by Mr. Sharp for the past nineteen years.

Such a grand time was had by children and animals alike.

Reproduced below is a typical obituary of 1918

Death of Popular Young Lady

Miss Gladys Thompson, of this city, was stricken with influenza last Friday while performing her duties as teacher in the public schools of Gibson City. She came home in the evening. Medical aid was summoned but there seemed to be no immediate cause for alarm. She became seriously ill during the night and pneumonia developed. She grew steadily worse until death relieved her of her suffering early Monday morning.

Gladys Thompson was born in Melvin, received her education in and was graduated from our public and high school, and for one as young had made exceptionally good success as a teacher in the schools of the county. She was a beautiful character and had a bright future before her, and it seems too bad that she must be taken away.

Obituary

Gladys Irene, daughter of W. W. and Mrs. May Thompson, was born in Melvin, Ill., April 29, 1896, and passed away after a short illness of influenza followed by pneumonia at home in Melvin on the early morning of December 10, 1918, aged 22 years, 7 months and 10 days. "Glad" as she was familiarly called has gone from us, but we feel she still lives among us in the precious memories and influences which her love for us were her most important. We shall miss her deeply. We shall remember her as we remember our���but always in our hearts.

Gladys leaves to mourn her early going her mother, one sister, and Mrs. Albert Trimmer, live brothers, Lloyd, of Clintonville; Lynne, Claire, Wayne and Harold, of this place. There is nothing more beautiful than love and confidence at home, and those who lost her, and knew Gladys best unite in saying that she was possessed of a beautiful spirit, and no one can speak too highly of her as a daughter, sister, friend.

This dear girl will be sadly missed in her home, in the church, and in the community. The universal heart of Melvin and neighborhood go out in sincerest sympathy with this grief-stricken family, and all may well say with an inspired writer: "The Lamb who is in the midst of the throne shall feed them and shall lead them unto the living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes!"

The funeral services were held from the family residence Tuesday afternoon, Rev. L. F. Coleman of the English M. E. Church officiating. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in the Melvin cemetery.
